DON'T BREAK QUARANTINE.

One little girl had a light case of measles—she did not feel sick at all, so she was out with the other children before she was entirely over it. She went to Sunday School and gave it to five others, of whom two nearly died and one became deaf. These gave it to nineteen more, of whom three died, one had intestinal ulcers, one had consumption, and two, troubles of the eyes, as results.

She played with her baby brother—and the baby got it and died.

She went to visit her little cousin, and she caught it—and then gave it to her father, who was sick for five months afterward and ultimately lost the hearing of his left ear.

—And all this woe grew and grew because one household let its child break quarantine.

PRINT PAPER MARKET WILD AS PRICES SOAR.

The price of print paper has had its share of discussion for the past four or five years, but at no time have the prices caused such utter consternation as they are causing at this time. During the year of 1914 and previous years the prices ranged in the neighborhood of three cents per pound. Through the years of the war prices fluctuated and reached a rate of six cents per pound. That was the highest that we had any knowledge of. The price dropped to about 5 cents per pound for a very few days early in July but soon resumed the six cent level. For the past few weeks the paper market has gone wild and there is no prospect of it becoming steady again in anything like the near future. The price of print paper today hovers around the 13 cent per pound mark and indications are strong for them to go much higher. This condition is working a hardship on the publishers of the country, especially is this true in the case of the small daily and weekly newspapers, and no doubt will be the means of suspending publication of a large number. The Publishers' Auxiliary in a late edition published the following bulletins:

Washington—Complaints of inability to secure print paper are pouring into government offices here. Newspapers are reporting prices of eight, nine and as high as twelve cents being asked for print paper, and when orders are placed at these prices it is possible to secure only very small quantities, not nearly enough to meet their needs.

A later report coming from New York City gives the following information:

New York—Thirteen cents a pound, f. o. b. mill, was asked for print paper here during this week. The price was for car load lots, and was made to one of the largest purchasers of sheet print paper in the country. The mill refused to make a price of anything less than thirteen cents.

This condition seems to be general all over the United States, as the following report from Omaha, Nebraska infers:

Omaha—One of the largest wholesale paper dealers of the country reports print paper prices going upward every day, with a raise in one week of more than $1 a hundred. Many mills are refusing to accept orders at any price, and a forced suspension of many papers is looked for as there is no prospect of any relief in the immediate future.

THE STORY OF "CHECKERS."

Will be shown at the Grayling Opera House, Thursday and Friday, December 4th and 5th.

Checkers was a race track tout with an inexhaustible fund of bright slang that represented the wisdom garnered through years of life among men. "Push" Miller was his constant companion and his greatest admirer.

Another guest at the hotel where Checkers was staying was Arthur Kendall. He had won the love of Alva Romaine years before, but now was anxious to break off with her.

He chose the night of a gay party at her apartment to tell her of his purpose, and left her heartbroken and humiliated before her guests.

Kendall had proposed several times to Pert Barlow, a Southern beauty and daughter of Judge Barlow, owner of a racing stable. Kendall's constant state of inebriation was noticed by Sadie Martin, a friend of Pert, who summoned Pert and her father by wire.

Pert, anxious to save Kendall from himself, turned to Checkers for aid. This proved to be the beginning of a friendship which speedily ripened into love.

But Checkers' proposal of marriage and Pert's acceptance were cut short by the arrival of Judge Barlow, who ordered Checkers off the premises—after Checkers had knocked Kendall down in self-defense. Judge Barlow hustled Pert to her room and locked her in.

This complicated matters greatly, for Pert and Checkers had planned to enter Pert's horse Remorse in the big race at New York. Kendall had bet heavily on Silver Dollar, another entry—even borrowing $20,000 from Judge Barlow to increase his investment.

Meanwhile Alva Romaine had taken the downward path and had become a frequent visitor at Sam Wah's opium den.

Checkers helped Pert escape by night while Push took Remorse from the stable. But they were quickly followed by Kendall and his hired thugs. Checkers and Pert gained the box car in which were Push and Remorse, by a flying leap from their automobile; but Kendall's henchmen got on the car by the same method and uncoupled it from the train. Then followed a terrific fight in the box car, which took fire as a lantern was overturned, narrowly escaped a head-on collision with the Limited, and then plunged through an open drawbridge into the river. All in the car managed to escape, however.

While the party was trying to find a place to hide Remorse in the city, they were trailed by Alva at Sam Wah's instigation. Remorse then was hidden in a secluded shack.

Kendall had his thugs kidnap Pert. She was taken to Sam Wah's den.

Checkers and Push learned Pert's whereabouts from a girl whom Checkers had rescued from an attack by ruffians. Checkers and Push rescued Pert after finding their way into Sam Wah's by devious underground passages and after a terrific fight with Kendall. Checkers, Pert and Push escaped from Sam Wah's by way of a sewer, and rowed out into the East River in a dory, from which they were picked up on signal by a passing seaplane, which took them to the Belmont track.

At the race track they found that Pert's jockey had been blinded by

WOULD CEMENT TRUNK LINE HIGHWAY THRU GRAYLING.

By Paying Extra Cost Several Blocks in Village May be Paved.

Representatives of the State Highway department were in Grayling last week and while here the matter of construction of the trunk line highway through the village was taken up. The cost of the highway will be about $1,500 in addition to the cost of the same built of gravel.

The proposed course is to be 18 feet in width and if built of concrete would furnish a lasting and much improved thoroughfare. No definite action could be taken at the meeting of the councilmen but the plan seemed to meet with approval, as no doubt it will with the tax payers generally.

The initial outlay of expense seems not large and certainly the cost of maintenance will be largely reduced, and it appears from superficial consideration that this opportunity should not be lost, but instead every effort should be made to assure its culminating success.

Report of the Debating Society.

A meeting of the Grayling High School Debating Society was held Wednesday, November 19th, 1919.

A Declamation, "The Ambitions of a Statesman," was given by Marcus Inley.

The question for debate was: "Resolved that Congress should adopt a system of Universal Military Training for all able-bodied male citizens between the ages of 18 and 25."

Affirmative: Ruth McCullough, Doris McLeod, Eugene Karpus.

Negative: Rueben Babb, Esmond Houghton, Margaret Cassidy.

The Debate, though it was the first of the season, showed enthusiasm and good sportsmanship. The judges, Miss Hoyt and Mr. Otterbein, gave their decisions in favor of the negative side. Congratulations were given to the winning side by their opponents.

A special meeting of the society was called for Tuesday, November 25th, at which the same question will be debated.

Affirmative: Laurence Larive, Margaret Insley, Eleanor Schumann.

Negative: Ingeborg Hanson, Oral Cameron, Charles Gierke.

The Agriculture class spent an hour in the Greenhouse, Friday morning. Mr. Cook took Mr. Fox's place as teacher, and showed the class many interesting things in connection with transplanting roots and the making and arranging of frames for hot-beds.

Miss Macauley (English IX): "Richard, tell us the meaning of the word Diet."

Richard the Wise answers: "It is the ratio of food that the doctor allows one person."

Eugene Karpus was elected captain of the Boys' basketball team.

Mr. Otterbein to Freshmen: "In case of fire, do not run!"

Wise Senior: "No use, green material doesn't burn."

The American Literature class is studying the Declaration of Independence. Altho they profess to be good Americans, it was surprising to find how little the majority know about one of the Nation's important documents.

The 8th A Civics class have finished U. S. Government and are starting the study of the Government of Michigan. Just wait until they are of age, they'll show the people how to vote, and how to vote intelligently. We nominate to the Junior High Hall of Fame:

Dorothy Peterson for her Marcelline.

Marcelline Sullivan for her ability in the work of the History department.

ROYAL UNUSUAL VOICE

The World's Next Step.

No. 1
League of Nations the First Unusual
World Move

BY CLARENCE L. SPEED
(Written for and Approved by the Illinois
Branch of League to Enforce Peace.)

Great steps in the world's progress have been made before. There came the awakening of the nations from the bigotry and intolerance of the dark ages; the rise of the spirit of democracy; the revolt against human slavery and serfdom; the general antipathy toward exploitation of one class by another.

But all of these steps in human progress had small beginnings. They would originate, perhaps, in a single community of one nation, spread from there over the whole country, cross borders with much difficulty, and finally sweep over the greater part of the civilized world.

Now, however, for the first time in history, we find in the organization of a league of nations what may be considered as the civilized world prepared to take a step forward in union. This being so, isn't it reasonable to expect that the league of nations idea will succeed more quickly than other progressive ideas which have preceded it? Democracy, as the modern world understands it, may be considered to date from our own revolution and the French revolution, though the seeds were planted long before then. The powerful of the earth were against it. Organized governments fought it. Armies and navies were used to put it down. Just a century ago, when Napoleon was overthrown and the ancient dynasties were being put back on their thrones, it might have seemed that democracy was doomed to failure.

George Washington brought this country to his mother 18 months ago, and since then he has been cared for at the blind Institute in New York city. Young Ganter has an unusual voice and reaches the highest notes with ease while his tones are unusually sweet and his diction almost flawless. "Is success the greatest thing in life?" This question was left by Mr. Otterbein for the students to decide. Opinion varies among pupils.

Blessed are they that are ignorant; For they are happy in thinking That they know everything.

SEES CHAOTIC EUROPE

Herbert Hoover Warns of Menace of Reds.

Only Greatly Increased Production Can Prevent Great Loss of Life, He Says.

London.—Unless European productivity can be rapidly increased, there can be nothing but political, moral and economic chaos finally interpreting itself in loss of life on a scale hitherto undreamed of, says Herbert Hoover, in an article in the British National Food Journal.

"Nor could credits be mobilized for this purpose for more than a short period because all credits must necessarily be simply an advance against the return of commodities in exchange and credits will break down the instant that the return of commodities becomes improbable. Further, if such credits be obtained for more than temporary purposes it would result in economic slavery of Europe to the western hemisphere and the ultimate end would be war again."

Mr. Hoover points out this solution of the European economic problem: "A vigorous realization of the actual situation in each country of Europe and a resolute statesmanship based on such a realization—the populations of Europe must be brought to a realization that productivity must be instantly increased."

In the present-day European ferment, Mr. Hoover says, "every economic patent medicine" has flocked under the banner of socialism or communism, which has claimed to speak for all the down-trodden—to alone speak human sympathy."

Experimentation in varying forms of these political leanings—socialism and communism—has so far, in every case, resulted in reduced production, the food controller says. Europe's threatened food famine, he says, is due "in the largest degree to the human factor of the limitation of effort."

Don't give a present unless you want to. Better not give at all than give insincerely.

Don't forget the mistletoe. Romance still lives.

Don't forget that it ought to be a merry Christmas.

Don't deny the little ones' ideas about Santa Claus.

Don't worry about unpaid bills—at any rate until tomorrow.

Don't scoff at the lingering superstitions of the good old days.

Don't for the show of things, buy presents which you can't afford.

Don't expect too many presents.

Take what you get and be thankful.

Don't, if you get up on your wrong side, make everybody else miserable.

Don't forget to think least once during the day what Christmas really means.

Don't give a present unless you want to. Better not give at all than give insincerely.

Don't forget that the giving of Christmas boxes, like charity, should begin at home.

Don't, if you are a girl, stand under the mistletoe until you see the right chap approaching.

Don't kiss somebody else's best girl, even though she is under the mistletoe. There might be a row.

Don't work on Christmas day if you can't avoid it. If you have to, however, don't make a song about it.

Don't give Johnnie a trumpet and Peter a whistle and expect to have a quiet time. It's unresonable.

Don't put off buying presents until the last minute. You'll get better value and avoid the crush if you shop early.

Don't send an electric rumble to a freezing widow with five starving children. This is like throwing a rope of hot-beds.

Don't look pale when somebody tells a fifty-year-old Christmas story. That's one of the unavoidable circumstances of the festive season.

Don't give a new song to some one who doesn't sing; but be still more certain that you don't give a new song to some one who imagines he can sing.

Don't refrain from giving because you can't afford to give much. The intrinsic value of a gift counts for nothing. It is the thought which prompts it that matters.

Don't let the wife give you a Christmas present in the form of cigars. If she persists in doing so, don't smoke them—give them away again, without letting her know about it, of course.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Either artificial or natural light may be used by the "photophone," which can only be tapped by an interception of the beam of light. Dr. A. O. Rankin is the inventor.

WARSHIP SAILS WITH AWNINGS

American Destroyer Travels Thousand Miles to the Azores With-out Fuel.

Ponta Delgada.—On account of water in its fuel oil supply the United States destroyer Maddox ran short of fuel 1,000 miles from the Azores and was forced to resort to the expedient of using its awnings for sails.

The Maddox has just arrived safely at Ponta Delgada.

The Maddox, while acting as a guard ship on the recent transatlantic air flight, sighted the disabled oil tanker Maumee in distress in a gale.

The Maddox towed the tanker, which is ten times its size, until it was relieved by other destroyers.

The high cost of deliveries is really a myth

Lots of people have been telling you that all grocery deliveries are expensive. That they greatly increase the cost of your food.

That you ought to save this cost by carrying your groceries home.

On the contrary our customers find our delivery system really economical.

It doesn't add to the cost of their groceries and provisions.

It saves their time and energy—which they can more profitably devote to their homes or to various outside interests.

We feel that it is part of a grocer's business to make deliveries. Our whole organization is built to serve you in this, and other ways.

For example, we maintain a telephone for your convenience. We extend credit. We carry the highest quality groceries we can buy. And we suggest to you various things we know to be especially good.

We take an interest in what you buy—when we sell you the ingredients for a cake, we like to know how it's going to turn out.

That's why we recommend to you RYZON, the Perfect Baking Powder. There's no uncertainty about RYZON—success is a foregone conclusion, for it is thoroughly dependable and at 40 cents per pound it is downright economy.

Ask us about the RYZON Baking Book if you haven't one already. You'll wonder how you ever got along without it.

When you want permanent relief take Chamberlain's Tablets and be careful to observe the directions with each package. These tablets not only move the bowels, but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.

A Good Cough Medicine for Children.

Mrs. J. W. Phillips, Redon, Ga., phoned to J. M. Floyd, the merchant there, for a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and said she had bought a bottle of it at his store recently and that it was doing her children so much good that she wanted to keep up the treatment. You will find nothing better for coughs and colds in children or for yourself. It keeps the cough loose, expectorator easy and soon frees the system from the cold.

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

A WALLED CITY OF WOMEN

A little sunny village has grown up inside a high wall in France within the last year. Its square flat houses stand in straight even rows and along one side of the city wall is a long dormitory for single women. There are many more of them than of the families in the drab little houses. The village is full of women—old, young, middle aged—whose faces, hands and hair slowly are turning yellow from the powder which it is said will eventually affect their lungs. But most of them are refugees and the fact that they are giving up their good looks, their health and perhaps their lives in the munition factory, is of little moment to them. They have come into the walled town from ruined villages and devastated farms with their frightened little children, their despatching old people, carrying all their earthly possessions in tiny bundles. In their individual lives there is no future; in all their world there is no interest but the conquest of the Hun.

No one comes into this little war community that centers around the big new munitions plant but those who work. Because of the danger and the blighting yellow powder, the work is highly paid and all the workers are volunteers.

The women wear overalls or apron dresses, some of black sateen, some nondescript. The dull gauze harmonizes with the yellowing faces and despairing eyes.

Into this modern walled city of despair the Blue Triangle has dashed the first message of hope. The Y. W. C. A. toy is the only recreational center within reach. The cars which find cafes at the end of the line a mile away, stop running at seven o'clock to save fuel. The city is three miles from the factory.

"My problem," writes the Y. W. C. A. secretary in charge, "is to keep the women occupied in the evenings, to give them good healthy amusement so that they will forget their sorrows and go to bed and sleep, physically tired out from playing."

She goes on to tell of some of the women and girls who come to the toyer:

"There is a pretty little round, rosy-cheeked girl here who is just beginning to show the effects of the powder. The roots of her hair and her forehead are a pale yellow. The palms of her hands are a deep burnt orange and her hands and arms a bright yellow.

"There is an ex-professional dancer, an interesting girl who enjoys the toyer and helps entertain the other girls. There is a professional pianist who does her bit at the noon and evening hours. There is one rough-and-ready girl who speaks English, whose father was an innkeeper in northern France. There is a pretty little girl who is engaged to a French soldier who still is rejoicing over the five minutes she had with him recently during an air raid. His mother is the caretaker here and he is one of six sons in the war. Two of them are German military prisoners, two are civil prisoners in Germany and two are soldiers in the trenches. Her home in the north of France was destroyed and she escaped with a small bundle of such things as she could carry in her hands.

"There is a sweet-faced girl who was a lacemaker in Valenciennes, who came direct to us from the German-ruined section after a hard experience in getting away."

These are the women the Blue Triangle is helping to forget—perhaps only for an hour at a time—the horrors that have blackened their hearts, stones and darkened the world.

"My toyer," the secretary writes, "consists of a hall and two large rooms with cement floors. One has a writing table and paper, pens and ink, sewing machines, a cupboard with teacups in it, a large table with papers and magazines, easy chairs and my desk. The other room has a piano, more tables, chairs, ironing boards and a Victoria. There are unframed French pictures and American and French war posters around the room. The walls are painted gray and white."

Saturday evenings they sing and dance. "First they have a chorus," writes the secretary, "such as 'Le Reve Paix' or 'Le Reve des Aviateurs' or something equally thrilling, and at the final notes of triumph a voice at my ears begins, 'Un polka, mees.' The polka finished, there is a call for the 'Hymne Americain' and we sing the 'Star-Spangled Banner' (Le Drapeau Etat) in two languages."

These foyers have been established in several munition centers in France. Each one has a cafeteria, a recreation hall and rooms fitted up as rest rooms, writing and sewing rooms. At night these rooms are filled with French girls learning English, bookkeeping or stenography, that they may work in the offices of the American Expeditionary Forces. In connection with each is a large recreation field or park.

At the request of the French ministry of war the Young Women's Christian association has opened clubrooms for the sixteen thousand French women employed in the offices of the war department.

So successful has been the foyer work in France that a call has come from England to the American Y. W. C. A. to bring its Blue Triangle buts and foyers across the channel. The English Y. W. C. A. has established centers for munitions workers on a smaller scale, but after inspection of the American work in France the four English representatives to the Allies' Women's Congress in Paris in August officially requested that the American Y. W. C. A. undertake similar work in England.
